April Plot Bunnies!

Plot Bunny Invasion!

As most of you have noticed, I have been eerily silent for the last couple of months. Why? Well, let's just say, plot bunnies decided to target me like the multiplication masters that they are.

Since the beginning of the year, I've had a few curve balls tossed my way that I have been working diligently to dispatch. The first was a good friend having major surgery that required as much attention as I could provide. Soon after, another issue arose when the same friend was in a car accident that left us both financially and emotionally spent. Recovery was slow going but could have been worse. Finally, I decided to move to a new place and call it my own at last. Needless to say, that little endeavor has been the most taxing of my life. Finances are now stretched to the limit. (and a little beyond)

Those issues made my writing, blogging, vlogging and publishing processes grind to a halt so I have been fighting to recover from my chaotic rabbit-nado. 😊

I have been (barely) posting my weekly IGTV shorts every Friday and have only missed a day so far in my daily Instagram posts. Facebook has been a different animal as I've been unable to delve as deeply as before. Rest assured, I will return once I am settled in my new location. (Fingers crossed!) 🙏

Fave Posts

My FB Fave this time was an odd question placed on a motivational thread. Many people try to present deep thoughts or topics that spark debates or often carry the conversations down a dark path. I sometimes contribute to add my thoughts on the topic, although I do try to lean away from the dark side. 😊

Question: What do you think about death?

My Answer: He's a cool dude. Not as much fun as Destruction but easy going and a good conversationalist. The last time he came around we chatted for a bit. He said to check out the next Avengers flick. I'm worried it won't live up to the hype but I'll give it a shot. 🙏

Rewind and recap

Ripples of Mind was a much bigger project than originally thought but it was a great relief to wrap up the final edits and graphics.

I am now getting it formatted for Amazon as well as every other book currently finished.

The last thing to do will be to fix a couple of things in Connections in Crimson before everything is released and promoted. I wanted this to be done by April 1st but apparently my own goals played me for the fool. Ah, well, things will change again after I am residing under a new roof. 😊

My Insta-fave is about reflection. I reflect much these days as my choices continue to change my world and my future. It is said that among the most traumatic events in life is moving so I am in complete agreement.

I've never thought about getting a place of my own but when the notion came to me, I'm sure it didn't involve a mountain of legal documents and tons of expenses never imagined. Oh, well...

Onwards!

The world we face every day is a reflection of what we see inside. Find the greatness in who you are and see the greatness of the world in every step you take.
Onwards! +

My IGTV shorts are still a fave weekly project. I hope everyone who gets to see my short vids enjoy them as much as I do making them. 😊

One of the items that fell aside was this month's comic video. I worked on it as best I could but time ran out as I kept having to sign documents, plan for a move and learn about the adventure of finding boxes for a move coming soon.

I will be dedicating much of my time in May and June to produce as much of my work as possible as I adjust to my new surroundings and financial situation. ("Working poor is a good thing, right?")

Where be I?

I am still on FB and IG. (and YouTube and IGTV) My new site is coming along so I'll include a link below. Feel free to check it out and let me know what you think. I'm working on it every chance I get. 😊
